If you want to stay at a very unique property with loads of atmosphere, the Inn of the Five Graces fills the bill. The five graces refer to the five graces of Tibetan philosophy – sight, sound, touch, smell and taste. The inn was formed from a group of abandoned adobe structures to create a very unique hotel.

The hotel consists of 24 suites and is full of the owner's, the Serets, collection of Central and South Asian artifacts, primarily from Afghanistan and Tibet. Sylvia Seret's one-of-a-kind mosaics fill all of the rooms, and Ira Seret's signature design style creates truly unique experiences in lodging. The rooms are also filled with exotic antiques, rugs, and textiles in addition to the architectural elements.

Santa Fe is truly an old city by American standards and the hotel is located right in the middle of one of Santa Fe's most historic neighborhoods. Across the Santa Fe Trail from the hotel is the San Miguel Mission, the oldest church in the United States, and next to it, the oldest house. In addition there is much to see in Santa Fe.

There are five rooms available for travelers with pets. The Inn allows up to two well-behaved pets weighing 50 pounds or less at a cost of $75 per pet per night. Pets can be left unattended in the rooms as long as they are crated. Upon arrival your pets will discover stuffed animals and treats waiting for them. The Inn is listed in a list of the top ten pet friendly properties in the United States.

A stay at The Five Graces includes in-room snacks and beverages, wi-fi, valet parking, access to the fitness room, spa services, 24-hour concierge and breakfast for an additional charge.
